Professor T. M. Sonneborn
Department of Zoology
Indiana University
Bloomington, Indiana

Dear Sonneborn:

I forgot to write you earlier about the address where I can obtain a mimeographed copy of the translation of Present's paper dealing with Lysenko's work. I am very anxious to have it in the files with other similar literature, and will appreciate it if you will let me know where I can get it.

If you are looking for a graduate student assistant, I have a good person here who is interested in taking up graduate work. She is Miss Ethelyn Lively, who majored in chemistry at the University of Georgia and has worked here for two years with bacteria and phages. She took the phage course last summer. She is a careful worker and a capable girl. I am certain that she will make a good graduate student. She would be dependent on some position to take care of living expenses.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

M. Demerec
